Excerpt: . . . 11 the strategic equation will enable the Bush administration to achieve substantial flexibility in shaping a smaller, more modern nuclear force. Another obvious justification for moving beyond the ABM Treaty is the very clear technological feasibility of deploying a national missile defense. In 1972, such a de-fense was little more than theoretical. However, since that time, the technology for shooting down incoming warheads has matured. After countless, successful tests - including the one ten days ago - there no longer is any question about missile de-fense being workable. So, Ronald Reagans dream of a global missile shield is now within our reach, and I am among those looking forward to the time when every nation acknowledges that ballistic missiles are crude and ineffectual relics of the past. The day is finally arriving when the American people will no longer be threatened by nuclear or biological missile attack. Yes,...
